WORK FOR LOVE SCHOOL

A child in the first seven years is full of will and learns about the world through play. The five senses are awakening — every sight, sound and taste is an experience to explore. A child at play is full of vitality, imagination and curiosity. Play is truly the work of the young child, and the creativity and skill involved in free play are an essential foundation of intellectual thinking. The Early Childhood programmes are pre-academic and address the developmental needs of the young child by creating a beautiful, nurturing environment where the young child can safely explore and create. We offer child care for our adult students' children, assuring quality age-appropriate education for a fulfilling life. Work For Love uses a holistic approach to education and development based on the Waldorf educational impulse striving to integrate the intellectual, practical and artistic development of pupils. In January 2017 we are opening a primary school with a Grade 1 class.

Holistic Skills Development

Our programme offers practical and market related training in relevant skills combined with life skills, business skills and artistic self-awareness training. This is based on community analysis and market analysis research conducted by Learn to Earn. We offer sewing and preschool teacher training and are implementing baking and gardening training.

The method used to develop low income parents is seen in the 'a hand up – not a hand out' viewpoint of Learn to Earn.

Job Creation

It is rewarding to see lives changed from unemployed to economically active. This change and restoration of dignity is enhanced dramatically when people are able to care for their families.

We assist our best graduates with becoming economically independent. This is achieved by making possible various business opportunities, job creation projects and access to 'economic ponds.' The number of graduates who are able to earn an income after graduating confirm the success of our programmes.

We believe that a nurturing family is safe, socially active, economically sustainable, emotionally stable and spiritually free.

The Family Centre

Nurturing families are role models that can positively affect a whole community. The family unit lays the first foundation for education, service and cultural forms. Parents are the child's first teachers. A family is defined as a group of people affiliated by birth or by love (marriage) and can metaphorically represent the inner and spiritual family or a community of choice and commitment. The family is at risk in our society and needs our support. We engage with families through artistic parental enrichment and personal-development courses and we offer counselling and therapy.
