Monica lives in Masiphumelele. She has proved her leadership qualities as the class representative of her class by arranging events and resolving conflict. She has a strong faith and holds high moral standards for herself. She has great style and fashion sense making her an ideal candidate to start a fashion business.

Monica has developed a business plan for her clothing business called Kika's Corner.

Now she needs start-up funding to set up a business hive at the Work For Love Centre where she will employ a number of her class mates.

She will be mentored for three years. If her business is successful after one year she is ready to take all the equipment and establish herself outside the centre.

Rizia started her own business making baby shoes (Happy Soles) after graduating from the Work For Love Sewing School. Rizia is married and has 3 young children.

She needs a business mentor to help her market her product and find outlets for the beautiful shoes she produces.

She needs more start-up capital to grow her business, buy industrial machines, material and employ an assistant.
